Sustainability Approach

We believe that considering environmental, social and governance (ESG) risks and opportunities is an important part of delivering long-term investment returns for our clients. Our approach is built around robustly integrating ESG assessment into our investment analysis and portfolio construction based on three pillars:

ESG Research, Data & Tools	Exclusions	Stewardship activities
Using financially material ESG information to inform our investment decisions by integrating ESG factors into the investment decision-making process.	Avoiding investment in areas that we believe bring excessive ESG risks.	Engaging with company management and voting at shareholder meetings to encourage good practice.

ESG Research, Data & Tools Help Guide The Investment Decision-Making Process

ESG research helps us identify material ESG-related risks and opportunities. Our ESG research is based on quantitative ESG data as well as qualitative analysis from our own analysts on non-financial criteria of companies and issuers of bonds.

Our Exclusion Policies Set Out What the Fund Doesn't Invest In

We apply our top-level screening policies and AXA IM ESG Standards policy to this fund which exclude investment in certain sectors, companies and bond issuers with poor ESG practices or behaviours.

- Top-level screening policies cover controversial weapons, climate risks, ecosystem protection & deforestation, soft commodities and tobacco.
- AXA IM ESG Standards policy includes white phosphorus weapons, violations of international norms and standards, severe controversies and low ESG quality names.

Stewardship Activities Encourage The Companies We Invest In To Do Better

Our responsible investing approach includes engaging with the management of companies where we own shares or bonds when we want to encourage good practice and/or maintain ongoing dialogue. We also use the voting rights that come with share ownership. We adopt an active and impactful approach to stewardship by using our scale as a global investment manager to influence company and market practices. If we don't feel a company is responding to engagement, we have a range of escalation routes and can ultimately disinvest.
